From Washington.

THE PRESIDENTIAL SITUATION. Washington, January 20, 1877.-The Presidential aspect is unchanged, all awaiting the action of Congress upon the "arbitration plan," about which there is almost as much diversity of opinion as there was the day of its promui gation. The impression, however, seems to be strengthening that the "plan" will be adopted. The radicals hope that the democrats may defeat it, as they seem afraid themselves to assume the responsibility. The idea that there can be a peaceable settlement makes the measure acceptable to many who would otherwise

SENATOR ANTHONY. Senator Anthony, of Rhode Island, was atacked with paralysis last night, and to-day lies very ill at his residence in this city. Fears are entertained that he will not recover.

THE ELECTORAL COUNT. The report of the Joint Committee on Count ing the Electoral Vote will be taken up in the House on Tuesday next, when the discussion will begin.

Congress

THE SENATE. WASHINGTON, January 20, 1877 .- It having been understood that the report on the method of counting the electoral vote would be called up to day the galleries were much fuller than usual, yet in the ladies and in the reseserved galleries there were vacant seats.

During the moratog hour Mr. Withers, of Va., replied to the remarks of Mr. Morton. made a few days since.

At the close of the morning bour Mr. Ed monds called up the report of the committee of fourteen on the plan for counting the electoral

Mr. Eliminals proceeded to discuss the report; he took it up feature by feature and contended that it was not a compromise, but a plain method of ascertaining, in the best way that the committee could find, what the law of the case was, and to apply that law to the facts growing out of the late Presidential election. He then considered the question of the constitutionality of the bill. He argued that the constitution del not confer upon the Vice President the right to count the vote. The power to open a certificate did not necessarily earry with it the right to decide upon the legality of the cordificate after it was opened. He spoke at length and was listened to with great atten-
